andrea zinn comes to photography with a painter s eye in her still life photographs it s about the light sunlight shadows reflections and transparency light bouncing off reflective surfaces light revealing structure objects illuminated objects emerging from darkness chiaroscuro derived from the italian words for light chiaro and dark osuro refers to a technique in art that uses strong contrast between light and shadow to create a sense of volume depth and drama this book examines rembrandt s influence on napoleon esteban s work chiaroscuro originated during the renaissance a period marked by the flourishing of art and intellectual thought in europe artists such as leonardo da vinci caravaggio and rembrandt mastered technique esteban was most impressed by rembrandt s subtle gradations which created psychological depth and evoking powerful moods the use of chiaroscuro goes beyond aesthetics it carries symbolic weight light often represents truth purity and enlightenment while darkness may embody secrecy danger or evil by embracing the interplay of light and darkness creators invite us to explore not only the external world but also the inner landscapes of the human world abstract w g sebald s writing has often been observed to have a unique quality a sebald effect but what is this effect in asking about it i was struck by the fact that even though chiaroscuro italian for light and dark is widely used in the visual arts an appreciated by many due to its mysterious quality it is also present in sebald s work yet it is ignored by all the literary criticism on him because of this discrepancy in my dissertation i explore this artistic technique which is a key concept in creating a peculiar atmosphere because personal and historical aspects are illuminated or hidden in a similar fashion as those in a chiaroscuro composition in fact the latter is not only an effect of the visual arts but also of prose in the same way as the dutch master rembrandt sebald has placed black and white in conversation while adjusting the shades of grey to the desired density for form texture and substance in my thesis i argue that a deeper meaning behind this technique is not produced by a strong black and white distinction but by observing how one gradually blends with the other this blend gives the composition a symbolic quality as it allows the artist to set up patters of both showing and hiding and makes any symbolism of light white and dark black complex the viewer is thus compelled to look in between those tonal shades to find the deeper meaning behind the work since the dutch painter was important to the german author he stands as a significant model for all his oeuvre in my dissertation i begin by explaining chiaroscuro in art then i show how it can be applied to photography after that i analyze chiaroscuro in sebald s photographs then in his prose in conclusion i argue that it is this technique which holds the fabric of his works intact through an invisible thread and gives his prose a sebald effect with this study i have given an analytical theory for future research and have contributed to the larger body of literature scholarship this study aims at an understanding of the function and represnetation of light and dark in painting and to make a systematic and comparative analysis of selected paintings withing the tradition of chiaroscuro and tenebrism theory how it is used and translated are core to the enquiry which needs to be taken into consideration before and during the production of a painting this research starts by looking at the broad history of chiaroscuro and tenebrism this study will identify and analyze a small number of historical paintings to identify a clear basis for comparison based on this historical understanding the study will focus into the effects of light and dark in three dimensional illusionism techniuie and representational figure paintings the comparative study will be based on three 17th century s artists namely caravaggio georges de la tour and rembrandt
